Violet Findley is the author of several books for teachers.

My daughter is about to start third grade, and confessed to me that she was nervous about having to write so much. She's great with coming up with ideas and constructing sentences, but her handwriting is bad, and getting her ideas down on paper is a challenge for her. We ordered this book hoping that a little more practice over the summer will help her feel more confident and make writing a little easier for her. The book is excellent, and she really likes it. Each page has a few letters or words to practice, followed by a joke or riddle to copy. She is enjoying the fun of the joke, which helps her not get bored with practicing her handwriting. She's doing one page a day, and it's almost like a treat for her because she gets to learn a new joke. It's a very low pressure, fun way to practice her writing and prepare for the beginning of school without anxiety.

My son absolutely loves this because of the jokes! He needed a little extra handwriting practice and this was a fun way to do it! Great job creators making kids a joy the work is like 90% of the battle.

Finally a book that makes proper handwriting meaningful and fun. My seven year old looks forward to it and does her best. With past exercises she would go on auto pilot during handwriting but now she is fully engaged. I let her pick the joke for each lesson so she practices her reading skills at the same time. At the end she is rewarded with a joke book of her own creation rather than a simple certificate. Some of the jokes leave much to be desired and aren't very clever but those are the ones she laughs the hardest at.

I got this workbook for my son who just completed second grade this year. I love the boy to death, but he has terrible, illegible handwriting and getting him to practice writing is always a struggle. This workbook saved the day as he finds the jokes humorous and seems to enjoy practicing his handwriting. His handwriting has improved already and he is only 1/3 of the way through the workbook!

My 7 year old has to write 5 minutes a night for homework, but they don't care what he writes. We bought this to give him something to write. He really likes learning all the jokes. While he still doesn't like writing, this book has made it possible to get his homework done. He actually finished the last page last night, so we will now be looking for another joke book similar to this one to keep going.

I home school and was on the hunt for something different for my 10 year old. She has already learned cursive and whatnot, but she is such a goof-ball and this was right up her alley. She still needed to work on her handwriting because I've noticed if she is wanting to do her work quickly she gets a little sloppy. So I figured (even tho this is for a younger age) that I needed to have something like this added to her curriculum we already do just to help keep her on track.....and its working..... The shipping was so fast and product is in perfect condition. Very pleased and would recommend this.

I bought this as a daily writing book for my 6 year old. I love that it has jokes and you can make your own joke book in the end but the sentences are too long for my six year old to write. It loosens his attention and he doesn't want to copy and write the whole joke so I have to split the sentence into sections. He loves the writing books that have the picture and then you make up a story about the picture. So I think the product is great I love the idea of creating a joke book but it did not hold my 6 year olds attention. I think I'll save it and try it again next year.

Great book to encourage or practice handwriting. Even though it is large print, and designated for younger kids, my 11 year old son (with ASD and dysgraphia) gets a kick out of the jokes and enjoys practicing writing them.
