I was disappointed upon receiving this item. From online you can see few some sample pages, but nowhere is it mention that these samples would be printed into the journal taking up almost 10 pages. Along with the printed samples the paper is extremely thin and and cover is paperback...how could this not fall apart. The cover is cute and very colorful, but over all this is a piece of junk that I would not recommend purchasing.

what i do like about this notebook is that there are some illustrations in the beginning to show you some options as far as BuJo layout, etc. the other thing i like, obviously, is the cover. it's adorbs. the problem is that markers bleed through the pages which is a huge issue for anyone that is focused on details or plans to be coloring squares in. my other disappointment (which may not be one for other people...all depends on your needs) is that the pages aren't numbered.

I love this! I started bullet journaling as a way to motivate and remind myself and with it I can get creative in different designs. I love succulents so finding this was awesome. In the beginning there's helpful examples like table of contents, monthly calendar and books to read and more. That's great for someone who's never done a bullet journal before. It's even bigger than I thought which is awesome cause I have big handwriting and terrible size to page when I'm drawing. The only thing I don't like is that the pages are kinda hard to rip out. So if I mess up or decide to change a goal or something it's hard to get a clean rip. But it's bright and colorful and perfect. This is a great beginner bullet journal. I'll probably buy it again when mine is full!

This journal is really pretty and is great to get anyone started. I disagree with other comments that say the pages are too thin. Yes, they are thin, but no thinner than the moleskine bullet style journals. You can spend half on this one, or twice as much on a moleskine. I'm personally a sucker in the later camp, because as perfect as this one is, it's just too big. I wish it came in a smaller size, that would make it five stars for me. Yes, I knew the size when I bought it, but it was so pretty and helpful that I had to try it. Unfortunately it just didn't work out how I'd like so I bought a smaller one...which is where I discovered the pages were the same thickness in the more expensive journals...so don't let that determine your purchase. Your markers will bleed through the fancy moleskines just the same.

This journal was SO cute, but the pages bleed through and I can not use it!

Awesome
