Synopsis

"Here's a FREE Excerpt from the Book: The narrator of the book is an unnamed woman throughout the length of the novel. In the start of the book, the narrator is kept inside a high school's gymnasium (The Rachel and Leah Center, informally known as The Red Center) and several other females are also there. Aunt Elizabeth and Aunt Sara serve as guards and discipline them. While these two utilize cattle prods to intimidate, other guards possess guns. The women have to stay in the gym except for the walks they are allowed to take twice a day. The school's field is shielded by barbed wire and male guards known as Angels. The women are forbidden from talking among themselves and exchange names via lip-reading. Subsequently, the narrator is inside a room that is white and scarcely furnished. The room does not contain anything that can be utilized as a weapon. As she hears a bell, the narrator changes into red attire engulfing her entire frame. A shade covers her face. She descends the stairs with her shopping basket. The narrator enters the kitchen and receives some tokens from Rita, the cook. Rita is a Martha and dressed in green. The name of the cleaner is Cora. The narrator wants to have conversations with the two like they do with each other but the Marthas are not supposed to have conversations with her kind. She remembers Luke. Rita orders the narrator to go to the market. If you want to read more, download and start reading now - even if it's 3AM! 100% Satisfaction Guaranteed or Your Money Back! Customer Reviews

After hearing about the show and this book I was interested in reading it, especially as everyone was talking about it. EasySummaries made it possible to read the book and talk about it without taking all that time. The book is a scary look into a bleak future for women. EasySummaries kept the main vibe of the world in its summary. I was able to learn all the names and important parts.

Hopefully this future never comes to pass.

This story is very harrowing and nightmarish. The main character goes through so many emotions that are lived out so vividly, it's very easy to picture being there in person to witness it first hand. It also has this sort of Orwellian feel to it. The plot reminded me a bit of 1984. I'd say if you're a fan of futuristic 'apocalyptic' scenarios that fits with a suspense novel, this is for you. Hope it never comes true!
